Statement of Significance

Date of Construction	1955	Architect/Engineer/Builder	Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	In the opinion of the surveyor, this property appears to meet the criteria of the National Register of Historic Places.
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	In the opinion of the surveyor, this property is located in a potential historic district (National and/or local).

6652-R provided important paint storage capabilities in the launch area of the H-52 Nike missile installation. It is therefore the conclusion of the U. S. Department of Energy that Building 6652-R in the former H-52 Nike missile base is eligible for the inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion A as a contributing property within the Hanford Site Manhattan Project and Cold War Era Historic District.

Description of Physical Appearance

The structure has a single door on the east side. It has one four pane window in the upper portion of the door with air vents on the lower portion. Outside the building, in front of the door, is a concrete block step. The interior of the north, south, and west walls consists of lined shelves. The building itself is made of concrete blocks painted a light green color. The building was used for storage and is in very good condition. Sheet metal flashing has been added to the perimeter of the roof. The building measures 7'6" x 7'6". The facility is currently abandoned.
